PREFACE

Several years ago I became interested in our family history, but I am sorry to say that it was not before I had carelessly let the golden age of opportunity slip away, and all the older members of our family had passed on to their eternal reward. When I did awaken to the fact that I must get busy, if I were ever to know anything about our family lineage, I was at a loss as to where to look or turn.

As my father died when I was but a child, and before I had ever thought of asking any questions about his parents and grandparents, I knew but very little of our family history. All the record I had was Grandmother Carothers' family record of her own children (their birth, marriage, and death) a list of Grandmother Carothers' brothers and sisters, and the names of the men her sisters married which I had gotten from my Great-Aunt Margaret Forsythe, the widow of Louis Forsythe (Grandmother Carothers' brother).

From my cousin Catherine L. Eskridge of Leavenworth, Kansas, I received a little sketch of the family, written by her father John H. Carothers for a gentleman in Pennsylvania who was gathering some family history. I also secured quite a bit of assistance from Manville Carothers of Kirksville, Missouri, who was also interested along the same line.

I then secured the services of a party in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, to look up the Carothers' history in Cumberland County. From them I secured copies of court records and deeds, and the location of the ancestral farm which quite definitely confirmed the sketch given by John H. Carothers.

About this time I received a letter from Josiah V. Thompson of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, asking about the Carothers family in Shelby County, Missouri. I gladly gave him all the assistance I could and in return he gave me quite a lot of material on the Carothers' line, confirming what I already had, and quite a bit of additional material on the family history, going back to Ireland and Scotland which he had secured from his genealogist whom he had employed to look up the family line in Scotland and Ireland.

Mr. Thompson had been gathering this material for a number of years with the intention of publishing it. Unfortunately, through adverse conditions of health and financial matters, he was prevented from achieving his ambition, his death occurring September 27, 1933.

I continued at my task and, although the early notes were jotted down, sometimes without giving their source, the facts were taken from the most reliable sources, such as family bibles, court records, marriage records, church records, obituaries, tombstones, deeds, wills, war and pension records, county histories, and historical books and magazines to be found in the Missouri Historical Society's Library at Columbia, Missouri.

Bit by bit, not much in itself, but in conjunction with other material, I have been able to trace the Carothers and other allied families back for a number of generations. However, there are some dates that are missing, attributively to the loss of church, court, family, and bible records by fire. I mention one instance when my Grandfather James Carothers and his family were coming to Missouri.

After leaving the boat at Hannibal, Missouri in 1836, they started westward with oxen hitched to a prairie schooner. After one day's travel they found the trail so rough and bad, that they decided to leave part of their baggage, go on to their destination, and come back later for what they had left. On going back, however, they found that a prairie fire had burned everything they had left, including the family bible and record.

I have spent quite a lot of time and expense in gathering this material and while a great deal of it was gathered here and there, bit by bit, yet by carefully comparing, checking, re-checking, and comparing the difference in the way names, both christian and surnames, were spelled, I have, I believe, traced in our branch of the family at least, a fairly accurate account of the family line.

The arrangement of this genealogical record, the charts, the printing, and binding were possible by the kindness and courtesy of the friends of Ralph E. Carothers, made through contact in his commercial activities.

Recognizing the efforts of those who gathered the information contained herein, it is his hope that this arrangement will make it easy to follow the family lineage.

"THE CARRUTHERS FAMILY"

"The surname Carruthers is of very early origin. The derivation of the name Carruthers is a matter of some dispute. One author gives it as coming from "Caer-Ruthryis", the Fort of Ridderick, while another gives it as coming from "Cuir-Ruther", the Fort of Assault. The family is one of the oldest in Scotland. They possessed lands there at the time when the Gaelic language was spoken in Scotland."

"If you, who are a Carruthers, wish to adhere to the original spelling, or Scottish form of this name, spell it Carruthers. If, however, you prefer the modern style of Orthography, Carothers is the way to write your name, or it may be Carother, or it may be Carruther. In Carruthers the final "s" only means "Son of Carruther".

"While the Carruthers are a Scottish family, they went from Scotland to the north of Ireland some centuries ago, and probably Scotland cannot claim honor of giving birth to the first Carruther; he was born in France, or all the probabilities point to France, and "Old Probability" plays some part in the family history once in awhile."

"It is this way: The special heraldic charge of the Carruthers coat-armor is the Lilly of France and this leads to the supposition that the Carruthers were originally French. They were firmly established in Scotland for centuries. Ireland is their second home, with the United States a good third claiming allegiance of a few branches of the main trunk line."

"Their original possessions, consisted of the Parish of Carruthers in Dumfriesshire, from which in all probability, their surname is derived. In the beginning of the eleventh century, when surnames were first adopted, the name of the parish had previously been derived from Caer-Ruthryis or Ciur-Rutheris. The parish, however, was united with Middleboro in 1609, along with the parish of Pennessaugh, which belongs to the Carlises."

"In the time of Wallace and Bruce, other parishes were added to the lands of Carruthers, such as Mouswald and Dalton."

"In the church yard of Mouswald, there is still to be seen a recumbent effigy of Sir Simon Carruthers, who was killed in 1484. Carruthers Church-yard is an interesting relic of bygone age."

"In Dumfriesshire, Scotland, there is a hamlet called Carruthers, and Carruthers castle is an interesting ruin. The "Carruthers of Howmains" were well known, and William Carruthers of Howmains was among the first to go to the support of Robert the high steward, who was later King Robert, when he took the field against Baliol in 1306."

"It is an interesting coat-armor, that of the Carruthers, with its unusual crest. The Blazon is: Cules, two chevrons engrailed between three lillies of France. Crest: An angelic being volant proper. Motto: "Promptus et Fidelis." (Ready and Faithful.)"

"It isn't every family that can boast of an angel, or near angel, for a crest. Indeed, is there another crest like it? It is doubtful. The symbolism is not clear but would seem to be something of a highly complimentary nature. The motto shows that the Carruthers are a people of probity and honor. The chevron denotes protection; engrailed, possession of land."

"The Fleur-de-lys on the Carothers coat of arms is said to have been brought down by an angel for the Arms of France, and which certainly was used by Louis VII, but was not popular in England until assumed by Henry III, who married a French princess and heiress."

"Louis le June seems to be the first French king to have used the Fleur-de-lys. Also in 1180 he used the Fleur-de-lys for a seal for his papers." (Werner's Encyclopedia.)

The earliest and most valuable records relating to English armorial bearings are found in the roll of arms of Henry III, known as Glovers Roll, 1243 to 1246, which describes 218 coats of arms.

Cumberland Valley, Pennsylvania was settled principally by Scotch-Irish and they organized the old Silver Spring Presbyterian Church about 1730. For election, military training and all public meetings, the church was the central point for several generations. The oldest tombstone is dated 1747, and several more 1750. Head-boards of locust were used earlier but they cannot now be read.

Family pride has always been a noted characteristic of the Carothers family, and the older members of the family always spoke to their children and grandchildren of their "good blood", and spoke of their being "gentle folk" in the "old country". They were very hospitable, attentive to business, and strict Presbyterians.

The Carothers family were among the first settlers and owned some of the best farms in the Cumberland Valley.

Josiah V. Thompson of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, spent a lifetime and thousands of dollars in having the Carruthers line traced and, according to his genealogist, the following is the line of descent, starting with

1. John Carruthers who had leases of land in 1523 at Little Dalton and other land at Annandale, Scotland. Annandale is a town on the Annan River, near where it empties into Solway Firth, in Dumfriesshire County, seventeen miles south of Dumfries. John Carruthers married Blanche, daughter of Sir John Murray. He was succeeded by his eldest son, John.

2. John Carruthers of Howmains, who was succeeded by his fifth son, John.

It was about this time that the Carruthers family began to change the spelling of their name from Carruthers to Caruthers or Carothers, at least some of them did, while some continued to spell it Carruthers.

8. John Carruthers, son of Robert 1690-1771, born in Antrim County, Ireland in 1739, came to America when but a child, and died in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania in 1798. Listed among the early settlers was John Carruthers who had a farm on the east side of Hoge's Run, where it empties into the Conodoguinet Creek, and on the south side of the Conodoguinet Creek.

In EYLES NOTES AND QUERIES, Volume 6, page 111, we find under Famous Men of Cumberland Valley: "John Caruthers: Was the son of Robert Caruthers, born 1739. Took an active part in the Revolutionary struggle, and was County Lieutenant, from August 22, 1777 to October 2, 1779. He was elected to the General Assembly in 1782, 1783, and 1784. He died on his plantation in East Pennsborough township, February 26, 1798 and is buried at the Silver Springs Meeting House."

The circumstance which resulted in John Caruthers' death and a tragedy in his family was this: A young girl, named Sarah Clark, living in the family of John Douglas, contracted a strong attachment for Mr. Douglas' son, who was at that time paying attention to Miss Ann Caruthers, daughter of John Caruthers, who lived near Silver Spring and was a neighbor of Mr. Douglas.

Sarah Clark overcome by her infatuation for young Douglas determined to destroy the life of Ann Caruthers and gain the object of her affections. With this aim in view, she hired as a servant in the house of Mr. Caruthers and bided her time. Having no ill will against the family, she desired to poison only Ann, and with this in view, she purchased some arsenic; but no suitable opportunity offering, she grew desperate, and put the arsenic in a pot of leaven.

The family all ate of the bread and became sick. Captain John Caruthers died on the 26th of February, 1798, and his wife Mary died soon afterwards, but Ann Caruthers, the intended victim survived. Andrew Caruthers, her brother, also survived, but was a cripple for life. Sally was tried, convicted, and hanged at Carlisle.

9. Andrew Carothers, son of John and Mary Armstrong Carothers, born at the old homestead near the Silver Spring Presbyterian Church in Cumberland County, Pa. January 20, 1778, died at Carlisle, Pa. July 27, 1836. He learned the trade of cabinet-maker. When he was about 20 years of age, his father's family was poisoned. Andrew was one of the sufferers. His limbs and hands were crippled to such an extent that he was incapacitated for the pursuit of the trade which he had learned.

The education he received in his youth was that which was imparted by the country school. It was not until he became unfitted for the occupation which required bodily labor that he turned his attention to the acquisition of such knowledge as would fit him for the pursuit of a professional life. He did not even then acquire a scientific education, but, by a course of reading and study with such aids as he could obtain at home, he fitted himself to become a student of law.

He entered the law office of David Watts, Esq., in Carlisle, about 1802, and after a period of three years he was admitted to the practice of law. Although his mind was not cultivated by any high degree of learning, it was of that character which enabled him to appreciate what he had studied and profit by what he had read. He became an excellent practical and learned lawyer and very soon took a high place at the Bar of Cumberland County, which at that time had among its members some of the best lawyers of the State. Watts, Duncan, Metzger, Alexander and Mahon were at different periods his competitors. Amongst these he acquired a large and lucrative practice which continued through his whole life.

He was remarkable for his amiability of temper, his purity of character, his unlimited disposition of charity and his love of justice. Notwithstanding his bodily infirmity, he was always active in all popular movements which tended to the public good or to the improvement of society.

In his early professional life he was chosen President of the Town Council of the Borough. He was a Trustee and active in promoting the interest of Dickinson College, and was no less so in the interest which he took in the welfare of the Presbyterian Church of which he was an Elder from the period of his early manhood.

No man ever commanded in a greater degree that affectionate regard of the community in which he lived than did Andrew Carothers. In all public assemblies and in courts of justice the greatest respect was paid to his arguments and opinions, which by reason of his bodily infirmity were always delivered in a sitting position.

He married Miss Catherine Loudon, (daughter of Matthew Loudon, born Feb. 12, 1783, died January 2, 1820) in the Presbyterian Church in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, June 11, 1812. Three children were born to this union as follows:

11. Sarah M. Carothers, daughter of James and Sarah F. Carothers, born in Allegheny County, Pa. May 7, 1828, died in Oregon January 31, 1891. Married Michael Heckart, a native of Pennsylvania December 22, 1857. Michael Heckart was a mill-wright, and came to the State of Missouri about the time the Carothers' family came from Pennsylvania.

In 1840 Daniel O. Walker, after whom Walkersville was named, and George W. Barker decided to erect a mill, as the nearest mill to this community was at Florida, in Monroe County, about 40 miles distant. They secured Michael Heckart to erect this mill. Power was secured by erecting a dam across Salt River at this point. This was one of the first mills in Shelby County and for forty years was one of the leading mills in the County for carding rolls, sawing lumber and grinding flour.

About 1880 Michael and Sarah Heckart went to Oregon and spent the remainder of their days there. They had two sons, James M., who lives near Oregon City, Oregon, and John, who lives in California.

THE BRYSON LETTER

THIS IS A COPY OF THE LETTER WRITTEN TO JOSIAH V. THOMPSON OF UNIONTOWN, PA. BY THOMAS B. BRYSON OF SILVER SPRING, PENNSYLVANIA. THE ORIGINAL LETTER IS IN THE POSSESSION OF MRS. THOMAS J. FERGUSON, SILVER SPRING MANSE, MECHANICSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA, R.F.D.

Silver Spring, Pa.
March 13, 1876

Mr. J. V. Thompson:

Your letter inquiring about the Carothers family was received and would have been answered sooner, but I waited to inquire of some of the older citizens. Not being able to get the information from the living, I resorted to graves of the burial ground of the Presbyterian Church of Silver Spring, near which we live, and will give you what I there gleaned, together with our knowledge of the family.

My wife, Alsetta Carothers, is now in her 65th year, having been born September 12, 1811. We were married September 16, 1834 and have one son, three daughters, and two grandchildren, sons of our son. My wife had one sister, Jane, two years her senior. She married James G. Oliver, M. D. He died in 1826, she in 1854, leaving three daughters and one son; all are married and have children.

The father of my wife was John Carothers who died before she was born in 1811. His widow married William Orr. The girls knew little about their father's family. Their father and his brother William owned, lived, and died on the mansion farm where their father and grandfather lived, on the banks of the Conodoguinet Creek, about four miles east of Silver Spring Church.

William died March 26, 1829, aged 58, leaving one child, John who died in 1835, aged 22. John and William had two sisters that we know of. Jane married John Orr. They left one child who married John Wolf, and after his death, William F-- of Gettysburg. She and all her children are dead except one daughter who married Rev. Bergstresser, a Lutheran preacher.

The other sister, Alice, daughter of John and Ayles Carothers, married James Carothers. They moved to western Pennsylvania. Their son, Jesse (James), was the only member of the family that we know. (Note: John and William had a brother who died in or about 1806.)

Of the three generations that preceded them, their tombstones state: "Here lies the body of John Carothers, the husband of Alice, who died January 11, 1783, aged 38, having been born in 1744." Alongside a similar stone states: "William Carothers, died November 15, 1762, aged 47, and Jean his wife died December 11, 1783, aged 72."

Now whether John and William were brothers, or father and son, there is nothing here to determine. We think they were father and son, and from them, their brothers and sisters, the branches of the family referred to below, and others scattered through the country are descended.

In direct line, we have living here now, the sixth generation. William who died in 1762, John 1783, John 1811, my wife, our own son William and his sons Thomas Bines, aged 4 and John C. aged 1.

A tombstone in another lot says Andrew Carothers died March 1st, 1817, aged 58, and near his grave are locust head boards, but the letters cannot be seen. One of them, no doubt, is the father of Andrew, and probably the brother of William, who died in 1762, the other his wife. The family lived north of the creek about four miles. This Andrew was an elder in Silver Spring as was my father, William Bryson, at the same time. He died in 1818, the year after Andrew Carothers.

This elder had a daughter, Miss Ann, about my age. I don't know what became of her, but believe she went west. He had a son who a few years since was in Washington, D. C., whose son and daughter visited us. The son who was a Presbyterian preacher, and preached at Silver Springs, is dead.

(Note: This Andrew Carothers was the son of John Carothers, whose will was made October 14, 1767, and proved August 8, 1783, recorded at Carlisle, Pa. One of the unknown graves mentioned above is thought to be John, the father of Andrew. Andrew's mother, Sarah (maiden not known, thought to be Neely) after the death of Andrew's father moved to Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, and died and was buried there in 1798. J. V. Thompson said that he had never been able to definitely locate his (John's) connection in the family line, although he is undoubtedly one of the family.)

In another lot and all in the church yard at Silver Spring is a tombstone, "John Carothers died February 26, 1798, aged 59." "Mary, wife of John, January 25, 1798, aged 58." "Andrew Carothers, died July 26, 1836, aged 58, and Catherine, his wife, 1825 (should be 1820), aged 37." "Thomas Carothers died 1851, aged 81, and Elizabeth, his wife died 1814, aged 40." These were two brothers.

They had a brother John, who was sheriff of the County (Cumberland), and a brother who married an Aunt of my wife's, whose son Jesse (James) we knew, as stated. A sister Mary (Jane) who married James Bell, and Ann who never married. They lived about four miles west of Silver Spring Church. John, the father, was, we think, the brother of William who died in 1762, and John who died in 1782 (1783) must have been the son of William as stated.

(Note: John the father died 1798, was the son of Robert Carothers, a half-brother of William, who died in 1762. See "Egles Notes and Queries", "Famous Men of Cumberland Valley", Volume 6, page 111.)

When the brothers and sisters of this family were all at home with their father and mother, a girl named Sally (or Sarah) Clark poisoned their food. Several members of the family died and some of them were crippled for life. Sally was tried, convicted, and hung at Carlisle. Jealousy was the cause. Sally had a sweetheart, who was very attentive to Miss Ann. To kill Ann, she poisoned the food, but Ann was not injured. Andrew was a farmer with his father, but was so crippled by the poison, that he could not work, and turned in to study law. As a lawyer he was distinguished for ability and probity.

John H. of Missouri, to whom you refer in your letter, is his oldest son. John, the sheriff, left a son and a daughter. She married Captain Littlejohn, but I think they are all dead. Thomas left a daughter, Nancy, who married Alfred Armstrong. She is dead. Two sons, William and Thomas went to Texas. Reports say one, or both, died.

Cumberland Valley was settled principally by Scotch-Irish, and they organized the church at Silver Spring about 1730. For election, military training, and all public meetings, the church was the central point for several generations. The oldest tombstone is 1747 and several more dated 1750. Head boards of locust were, no doubt, used earlier, but they cannot now be read.

The Carothers family was among the first families and owned some of the best farms in the Valley. Few of the names are known here now. The same may be said of nearly all the families who were among the first settlers. Only a few of us have been left, and remain in the Valley our forefathers possessed.

Should you or any of your family come East, we will be pleased to have a visit from any of you and as it is expected that every one will visit Philadelphia this Centennial year, we will expect a visit. Hoping that you may find some statements in this long letter, in preparing your histories and genealogical tables, I am

Yours truly,

Thomas B. Bryson."

Personally appeared before me, Leone M. Coover, Deputy Register of Wills for the County of Cumberland, and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Guiles Flower, local historian and author of "Early History of the Cumberland Valley" (published serially by the Harrisburg Evening News), who being duly sworn according today and deposes and says that:

Cumberland County during the Revolutionary War extended westward of the Susquehanna to the limits of Bedford County, and as far south as the Maryland line.

There were two Captain John Carothers who served in the Revolution from Cumberland County, the one John Carothers living in the Eastern section of the County, East Pennsborough township, about five miles west of the Susquehanna River. This John Carothers lived near the Village of Hogestown in the section near to the Silver Spring Church. This is the John Carothers who served as Lieutenant of Cumberland County, and also as Captain of various troops later. For the services of this Captain John Carothers, also Lieutenant of the County, see Pennsylvania Archives, 5th Series, Volume 6, Pages 3, 5, 6, 227, 233, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594.

The second John Carothers who served first as a Lieutenant and later as a Captain of the Second Battalion, Cumberland County, was from West Pennsborough township. The list of officers when he was a Lieutenant are from West Pennsborough or nearby, his class roll as shown on page 196, is made up almost exclusively of West Pennsborough men. Henry Hay, the ensign of his company, was a brother-in-law of Captain John Carothers, while five of Captain John Carothers' brothers served in his regiment in various classes, viz.: 3rd class, William Carothers; 5th class, Andrew Carothers, and Armstrong Carothers, 6th class, Martin Carothers, 8th class, James Carothers, Sr. (eldest brother), while another brother-in-law, George Clark, served in the fourth class. All these men were of West Pennsborough township, and the place upon which Carothers lived was about six miles west of Carlisle.

For the service of Captain John Carothers, West Pennsborough township, see Pennsylvania Archives 6th Volume, 5th Series, Pages 155, 161, 164, 172, 196, 198.

OLD MOTHER CUMBERLAND

By

Geo. O. Seilheimer, in "Pennsylvania Magazine of History and Biography", Volume 24, Page 17.

Pennsborough township was established in 1735, and divided into East and West Pennsborough townships in 1745. The first trading post in Cumberland Valley was established by Jacques Le Tort, who built a cabin at Beaver Pond, near where Carlisle now stands, as early as 1720, and settlers began coming into the Valley about 1728 or 1730. Silver Spring and the Meeting-House Churches, are said to date their beginning in 1734.

Silver Spring Church was named after Silver's Spring, which entered the Conodoguinet Creek near the site of the meeting-house, and the spring was named after James Silver, who was one of the earliest settlers in the Valley, about 1728. Silver Spring rises from a large fountain about a mile north of the Conodoguinet Creek.

From James Silver's house, the next stop in our journey is at John Hoge (pronounced Hogg). Hoge's Run rises on what was the Hoge tract of land and empties into the Conodoguinet Creek. Hoge's wife was Gwenthlene Bowen, who claimed to belong to the royal family of Wales, and retained her maiden name after marriage, as due to her royal birth. They had two sons, David and Jonathan. David was sheriff of Cumberland County 1768-71, and Jonathan was a member of the Pennsylvania Convention of 1776, and the Council of Safety, and the Supreme Executive Council.

Isabella Oliver was the first poet of the Cumberland Valley, and she celebrated a number of localisms on the Conodoguinet in verse. Among her poems was one on the poisoning of John Carothers' family by a jealous servant, Sallie Clark. John Carothers settled at the mouth of Hoge's Run, and on the east side of the Run. He was prominent in the affairs of the County, serving as County Lieutenant, 1777-1779, and as a member of the General Assembly, 1782-3-4. His son John was sheriff of Cumberland County, 1798.

Will Book B, Page 93

Proven July 4, 1771

In the name of God, Amen! January 1, 1771. I, Robert Carruthers, in the township of East Pennsborough, in the County of Cumberland, and the Province of Pennsylvania, being this day in a good state of health and in perfect mind and memory, but so far advanced in years, that through age and frailty, I am only capable of consuming and diminishing what little portion of worldly goods the Almighty and Gracious God has been pleased to favor me with and calling to mind that it is appointed to all men once to die; do therefore devise, appoint, ordain and make my last will and testament, that is to say principally, and first of all, I bequeath or assign my soul to God who gave it, and my body to the earth there to be interred in a decent Christian manner, nothing doubting that I shall again receive the same at the general Resurrection, and in the second place I order, appoint, and dispose of my worldly estate, real and personal, in the following manner and form.

First: I bequeath to Janet Nailor, my only daughter, the sum of fifty pounds, lawful money of Pennsylvania, which sum I order and devise to be divided among her children at her discretion, the same to be levied out of my estate, real and personal; the remainder of which I bequeath to my son John Carruthers, whom I appoint sole heir of my realestate, with all my goods and chattels and properties to me belonging, and I appoint, ordain and constitute John Carruthers, my beloved and trusty cousin sole Executor of this my last will and testament, in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written.

John Carruthers, East Pennsborough township, will made October 14, 1767, proven August 8, 1783, will Book D, Page 172. Executors: John Carruthers and David Bell, testator's friends. Wife, Sarah, daughters Margaret and Isabel, sons Robert and James to whom he bequeaths land in Mecklenburg County North Carolina of which the testator is possessed. Other sons were John, William, Andrew, Samuel, Ezekiel, Archibald. Mentions an unborn child when will was made.

Note: This man is the ancestor of S. M. Carothers of Sumter, South Carolina (great great grandfather). His daughter Margaret married Samuel Strohm, and Isabel married Absalom Woodward. Son William married Jean (-), son James married Mary Neely. James, Robert, and John served in the North Carolina Militia in the Revolution and it is thought that his other sons all served in Pennsylvania in the Revolution.

S. M. CAROTHERS LINE

The first record we have of John Carruthers, see (22), is found in his will made October 14, 1767, and proved August 8, 1783, recorded at Carlisle, Pa. In the will he names wife Sarah (maiden name unknown, perhaps Neely), sons Robert, James (to whom he wills lands in Mecklenburg County, N. C.) John, William, Andrew, Samuel, Ezekiel, and Archibald; daughters Margaret, married Samuel Strohm, Isabella, married Absalom Woodward, an unborn child, and Jean who married Samuel Neely. She died in 1797, and she and her mother Sarah are buried in the Steel Creek Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Mecklenburg County, N. C.

After John's death, Sarah his widow moved to Mecklenburg County, N. C. and died there in 1798. It is thought that John the husband of Sarah is buried in the Silver Spring Presbyterian Church Grave Yard in Cumberland County, Pa. with his son Andrew who died there in 1817.

Robert, the first son of John and Sarah, was born (we find from the date given in application for a pension) in Lancaster County, Pa. February 14, 1750. Cumberland County was formed from a part of Lancaster County in December 1750. John Carruthers deeded to his son, Robert, 150 acres of land in Mecklenburg County, N. C. in August 1774.

Robert married Margaret Scott about 1776. He moved to Davidson County, Tennessee in 1791 and died in Marshall County, Tennessee in 1837. He left a large number of descendants in Tennessee. Served in the Revolutionary War from North Carolina.

Margaret Carruthers must have been born before 1750, as John C. refers in his will to the fact that she is old enough to be married, and if she wished to do so was to receive 10 lbs. at date of marriage. From deeds of transfer we find she married Samuel Strohm.

John Carruthers, son of John and Sarah, we find from pension records, was living in Cumberland County Pa. in 1776 and served in the Revolutionary forces until 1778. In the fall of 1778 he went to Mecklenburg County, N. C. and served there until the close of the war. Born in Pennsylvania in May 1755 he married twice, first to Mary Vance and the second time to Esther (-). He sold his interest in lands in Pennsylvania to his brother Andrew in 1785, deed recorded at Carlisle. He died in Mecklenburg County, N. C. in 1838 and is buried in the Steel Creek Church grave yard. He left a long line of descendants, some of whom are still living there.

William Carruthers, son of John and Sarah, married Jean (-), signed a deed in 1790 transferring his interest in land in Cumberland County, Pa. to Samuel Strohm. He seems to be the same William who died in Washington County, Pa. in 1811 and left a will naming children Sarah Miller, John Carothers Ann Baker, David Carothers and grandson Eddy Carothers; wife Jane.

Andrew Carruthers, born in Cumberland County, Pa. in 1759 died March 1, 1817. Married Mary (-). It is thought that Andrew acquired the interest of his mother and sister in lands in Pennsylvania and lived and died at the old homestead.

Samuel Carruthers, son of John and Sarah, not much trace of him, but know that he sold his interest in lands to his brother William Carruthers in 1788, and he may be the Samuel Carothers who married Polly Waugh, and went to Washington County, Pa. and was there in 1802. Had son John Waugh Carothers and daughter Jane Carothers.

Ezekiel Carruthers, son of John and Sarah of whom no further trace is found after final settlement of estate is made in 1790. It is thought that he is the same Ezekiel Carruthers that is found in Tennessee records as an Indian fighter in 1793 and died before Sarah made her will in 1798.

Archibald Carruthers, son of John and Sarah, married Christian (-) and signed a deed to his interest in lands to Nicholas Cooper in 1791. Nothing further is known of him.

Isabella Carruthers, daughter of John and Sarah, married Absalom Woodward and in 1790 they deeded their interest in lands to Samuel Strohm. All of the above transfers are shown on the records at Carlisle.

Jean Carruthers, the unborn child mentioned in John's will, but named in the final settlement of the Executor in 1790, married Samuel Neely in Mecklenburg County, N. C. and died in 1795.

James Carruthers, son of John and Sarah Carruthers, born April 17, 1750, died December 7, 1836 (there is evidently an error here, as his brother Robert's birthday is given as February 14, 1750 in his application for a pension). James married Mary Neely January 11, 1776 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. Children were Hannah, born Nov. 15, 1776; John born July 20, 1778; Sarah born Sept. 10, 1780; and Moses born July 30, 1782.

Mary wife of James Carothers died September 19, 1784. Mother and three children Hannah, Sarah and Moses are buried in the Steel Creek Church grave yard. James married the second time Agnes Neely, June 9, 1785 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. Children Samuel, born March 31, 1786 and died in Madison County, Tenn. in 1847; James born Oct. 25, 1787, died in York County, S. C. 1854; Mary born May 11, 1790, died in York County, S. C. in 1846; Thomas Neely born 1792 died in Mecklenburg County, N. C. 1820; William born 1796, died 1843 in York County, S. C.

James Carothers (1750) moved from Mecklenburg County, N. C. to York County, S. C. in November 1803, and died there in 1836. Served with his brothers Robert and John in the Mecklenburg County Militia in the Revolutionary War. He and his second wife are buried in the Ebenezer Church grave yard in York County, S. C.

She died in 1885. He married his second wife in 1890 and she died in 1931. He and his first wife are buried in the Ebenezer Church grave yard in York County, S. C. Children as follows:

Samuel McKnight Carothers completed his education at the Ebenezer Academy, taught school one year, and then engaged in the mercantile business from 1892 until 1930. He then entered the real estate and insurance business and was living at Sumter, S. C. in 1934. He stated that most all of the Carothers in North and South Carolina are Presbyterians and democrats, but occasionally one of them would become an independent. His father and four of his father's brothers were in the Confederate Army.

Andrew and James Carruthers (twins) married sisters Margaret and Nancy Neely. The families of James and Andrew are connected on both sides to John and Sarah Carruthers, but the exact relationship is not known. J. V. Thompson said that James and Andrew (twins) were born about 1740 and were the sons of James Carruthers, born Sept. 8, 1715 at Letterkenny, Ireland and were the brothers of William who married Isabella Armstrong.

James Carruthers married Nancy Neely who died in 1776. They lived on a farm called the "Loop" in Huntingdon County, Pa. His second wife was Abigail Henderson of Baltimore, Md. and they lived near Shirleysburg, Pa.

Andrew, his twin brother, married Margaret Neely and lived in Cumberland County, Pa. but moved to Cabarrus County, N. C. before the Revolution and was wounded at Kings Mountain.

A Samuel Caruthers married Elizabeth Looney in Tennessee in 1789 and one of his descendants settled in Missouri and went to Congress from that State; probably a grandson, as a record of the Caruthers in Missouri said that Samuel Caruthers (son of Davil Looney Caruthers, born Oct. 15, 1820, graduated from Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., represented his district in Congress several terms, and was known as the "Swamp Fox". He had an uncle, who was connected with the Cumberland University, named Robert Caruthers. Judge Robert Caruthers after teaching law in the Cumberland University was a member of the Supreme Court of Tennessee.

D. L. Carothers was Assessor of Madison County, Missouri in 1832-1833.

S. D. Carothers was Probate Judge of Madison County, Missouri in 1851-1853 and State Representative in 1873-1875.

Edgar Prewitt Carothers, son of Solomon D. Carothers, of Madison County, Mo. was born Oct. 27, 1854. Is editor of the Dunklin Co. Democrat.

LaFayette Carothers, son of James and Margaret Simmons Carothers was born 11-5-1864. He is a lawyer of Cape Girardeau, Missouri. His father James Carothers came to Missouri from Tennessee.

Hugh Carothers lived in Augusta Co., Va., 1750-1758, went to Mecklenburg Co., N. C. in 1761 and died there in 1782, leaving a widow Sarah, and four sons and two daughters.

THE CAROTHERS LINE IN TEXAS from Texas and Texans by Frank W. Johnson

The Caruthers family originated in Annandale, Scotland, a place distinguished in early history. The Caruthers were of a noble line of Scots. Many of them, both in earlier and later generations, have been distinguished by very praiseworthy characteristics. In earlier times the members of the clan were closely knit together, and family pride has always been a strong feature. They were noted for their hospitality and generosity and for their devotion to religion of the Old Scotch Presbyterian type.

William Caruthers, a native of Pennsylvania, went to Texas in 1836, and was with General Sam Huston in fighting for the independence of Texas.

John Caruthers, a brother of William Caruthers, came with his family to Texas in the early forties, and one of his sons was Capt. Sam Caruthers. Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter was Captain Sam's daughter.

In the organization of the Texas Congress of Mothers, Mrs. Porter of Dallas was the leader of a movement, the results of which have already been as important as any single constructive enterprise ever undertaken in the material development of Texas and the future influence and scope of whose work must transcend in vital value many of these enterprises which in other fields have brought enduring fame to the men who have conceived and carried them out.

The land south of the Monongahela River, near the Youghiogheny, belonged to, or rather was claimed, by Virginia and was called Youghiogheny County, District of West Augusta, Virginia. The first court House was on the Hill above Elrama, Pa. (Allegheny County), on the farm of Andrew Heath. One of the justices of this court was Benjamin Kuykendall, whose daughter Susannah married James Forsythe, Jr. in 1785 or 1786.

Benjamin Kuykendall with Gabriel Peterson and others settled on the property which is now Clairton, Pa. He is buried in the little graveyard that was on his farm and is now hemmed in by the Carnegie Steel Company, the railroad and the County Road. Seven generations of the Forsythes are buried in the Lebanon Church Cemetery, Allegheny County, Pa. Lebanon Church is "as old as the nation."

THE FORSYTHES

James Forsythe, Sr. was born in Londonderry Township, Ulster County, Ireland, of Scotch parents in the year of 1720. With his elder brothers, William and John Forsythe, he immigrated to America in 1739, landing at Wilmington, Delaware. From there he went to Chester County, Pa. now Chester, Delaware County, Pa. John became a teacher and is supposed to be buried at Chester where a marker is erected to his memory as an educator. William according to tradition moved to one of the southern states.

James Forsythe, Sr. married Mrs. Margaret Vail Means, a widow with six children. We have the name of only one child, Thomas Vail Means. James and Margaret Vail Means Forsythe had six children: 1. Sarah, 2. Margaret, 3. Mary (called Polly), 4. James, Jr., 5. William, and 6. George, while they lived in Chester County. Sometime after Pontiac's War, about 1765, James Forsythe, Sr. moved with his family from Chester County, Pa. to Winchester, Frederick County, Virginia.

Major Connelly was a justice of the peace of Augusta County, Virginia, and represented Lord Dunmore, Governor of Virginia, in asserting the jurisdiction over the territory of Western Pennsylvania. Later he, deciding to belong to Pennsylvania, called his company to meet him at Fort Pitt, January 25, 1774. In response to that call, James Forsythe, Jr., then a lad of 18 years, came from Winchester together with a brother-in-law, James Holliday of Major Connelly's command.

On the way to the fort they stopped to eat and rest on a tract of land drained by Pine Run between nine and ten miles south of the fort. There James Forsythe stayed over night while James Holliday proceeded on to Fort Pitt. In 1783 James Forsythe, Sr. purchased for 60 lbs. that same tract of land on which his son James had decided to settle, and in 1784 he purchased a warrant of survey which was executed in 1785, and a patent was issued to him in 1787 for a tract of 328 acres and allowances under the name of "Long Knife."

Tradition states that James Forsythe together with a man named Fife escaped from the Indians and walked home from Wheeling, West Virginia, arriving home exhausted and nearly starved. Later it was learned that a man by the name of Fife, together with a man whose name was not learned, were the only men who escaped from the Indians when General Crawford was burned at the stake in 1782.
